

Think about it the earth actually provides everything we need debt free. all we have to do is apply the magical touch of human labor to turn the the earths raw natural resources into literally anything we want. We humans have been on this planet for a long time and for as long as we have lived here, we have been working, laboring our life away and for what? We have nothing to collectively show for all this hard work over billions of life spans and when we look forward into the future, we see nothing but more work and more labor for future generations to come. What happened here? Where is our equity as Earthlings? Its like paying a mortgage that never goes down, you never gain any equity for yourself so the bank still owns 100% of the house forever even though you have been working and paying for years. A very depressing scenario when you look at it truthfully. This is the result of having the wealth of a few men surpass the combined monetary worth of entire countries. Most people dont realize that if a man has $XXX,000,000 in his bank account just sitting there, thats not just money sitting in a bank... thats the collective equity of millions of years in human labor that is not doing anything for humanity. Once a person has surpassed the amount of money necessary to sustain their life and the lives of their family for generations, then there is no use in having any more money just sitting in a bank somewhere collecting interest while not being put to work to relieve human strife. This is the problem that keeps earthlings trapped in the debt of their own birth, and debt is slavery, for the only way to relieve debt is to work it off. Traditional slavery, was too expensive for the slave owner because they had to pay for the living expenses of the slave. But in modern society, labor is controlled by wages, thus, creating the self-financed slave who is responsible for feeding, housing and securing themselves. This type of slavery does not discriminate by race but enslaves all people from birth, for the benefit of a few who manipulate wages from the top of the pyramid while storing the sweat equity of the majority as digits inside a computer network displayed on their bank account screens. The capitalists ideology documented by men such as Adam Smith in his writings, The Wealth of Nations encourages each human to pursue their own self interest because it will produce a more efficient society. Yet, all capitalism has produced is a monetary based economy that results in corruption, class separation, selfishness, and abuse of labor leaving us at the point where we are now with nothing but our labor remaining which was exactly what we started with a long time ago. This type of society results in the majority of the best and brightest humans becoming trapped in a cubical wasting their intellect to make as much money as possible to get out of the debt of their birth rather than for building and inventing creations that will assist with the evolution of society.
