

My Childhood Memories Living on 700 Acre Island is a true story of my family and I living on a small island. My mother was a maid and my father was one of the caretakers for the famous artist Charles Dana Gibson and his family. My childhood experiences on 700 Acre Island were during the 1920s to 1940s. During the summers the Gibsons lived on the island and in the winters they lived in New York City. My story touches base with a little history on the Gibsons and my parents experiences care taking for the famous artist. I will also tell you about my sister Nellie and me and our childhood times with our friends living on the island. I will explain about the special moments my sister and I had with the Gibsons in some aspects of our lives.
